DANCING HALL LEADS TO HELL

Women Allow Men to Hug
Them There But Refuse
on Streets

MR. WILLIS WAXES WARM

In Sermon Last Night—Scores
Divorce, Early Marriages,
Skating Rink and Card

Evangelist Willis preached to a large audience at the First Presbyterian church last evening. He took his text from the trial of the Savior which contained these words, "Barabbas or Jesus."

"The Jews were offered Jesus or Barabbas and they chose the criminal rather than their friend, and today men are offered the same, and many are choosing Barabbas and crucifying Jesus," said the evangelist in the opening of his discourse. "Would the social club, the 500 or Upper Ten club have defended Jesus? No, I think not."

"People don't want Jesus to interfere with them today. You ought to be glad to have him interfere with your business when he can save you from going to hell."

"When the grocer has the religion of Jesus Christ, he will quit selling turnips for horse radish and the dry goods man will sell thirty-six inches of cloth for a yard. Oh, friends, there is too much mockery in the world."

"Today people say give me my pleasure and I will give up Jesus. This is pure cussedness. They want their sport when their very soul is going to damnation."

In speaking of divorce he said, "The Catholics are right in regard to divorce and you and I are wrong. We ought not to be unequally yoked together. Nowadays little folks want to get married in the 'new way—run off.' A seventeen-year-old sissy, just old enough to be taken across her mother's apron, comes to her mother and says, 'Mamma, I want to get married.' 'Why?' asks the mother. 'Because John loves me.' 'How do you know,' says the mother. 'Why he kissed me.' 'Oh friends many a young girl has been led to ruin by letting a kiss be implanted upon her cheek by a young sport, who goes about with a roll of brown paper in his mouth and blue smoke coming out of his nose.'"

"Is there a mother in this house to-night who ever gave her daughter dancing lessons? Do you know what you have done? You have ruined a soul. Oh, but the mother says, 'I want her to be graceful.' If dancing has made some of the ladies in this city graceful; none for me. Some of them whom I have seen on the street step four feet where they ought to step only one."

"When you were at the Social club the other night you were being hugged by some man because you gave him that privilege. Why not give him the same privilege on the street? 'Ah, some one would see you,' you say. Well some one saw you in the dance hall. You were dressed nice, weren't you? Some of you were not dressed enough. Peek-a-boo! Ah friends, the dance hall is a short cut to hell."

"Men and women, the card club, dance hall and skating rink will never raise the morality of a city. When you go to the next dance or card party take your Bible with you and open the game or dance by reading the fifth chapter of Matthew. Why don't

The children of the late "Aunt Abbie" Henley, says the Carthage Citizen, have been here the past week dividing the property and adjusting the business. Mrs. Hackleman returned to her home at Rushville, Tuesday, C. M. Henley left for Converse Wednesday, and R. P. Henley has returned to Swayzee. Miss Ida Henley will make her home for the present with her brother Alton and family. The old home was unoccupied Tuesday night perhaps for the first time since it was built. It will remain closed until the farm is sold.

SHELBYVILLE IS BATTLE GROUND

Where the Spirited Congress-sional Convention will be Held This Year

CHAIRMEN DECIDE TODAY

Rushville Lost Out in Friendly
Contest at Cambridge City—
To Be Held April 9

Well, we lost out on the Congressional convention. That spirited meeting will be held in Shelbyville on April 9th it being so ordained at the district meeting of the county chairmen in session at Cambridge City to day.

The contest for the battle ground was a friendly one, and as Shelby county has no candidate in the field, being with Rush and Franklin counties, neutral grounds, it was a case of the "long straw" landing the plum. The convention this year will mean much to a city in a commercial way, for the six congressional candidates will likely open headquarters in advance as it is anybody's race.

The Rush county delegation will go to the convention scattering flowers all along the way for the "Big Six," and with the soft pedal on even when it comes time for the cheering. But with Watson at the head of the State ticket, the Republican nominee for Congress in this district can be assured of a majority up in the hundreds towards the four figure mark in Rush county.

The trains on the C. H. & D. were running several hours late this week on account of the snow storm. One passenger train was ten hours late.

you? They won't mix will they? We have too many mixers in the church today."

For an illustration of how sin got its hold upon men and women, the evangelist called a small boy to the platform and tied a small thread around his arms and body and illustrated how this was the first drink. The boy broke this one easy, but the next one was a little harder to break, and so on until the cord he used was too strong for the lad's strength. The cords became larger and stronger with which he wrapped the boy's body until at last he used a chain to wrap the boy's body, illustrating how completely the man and woman who had allowed sin to have its way in their life was completely bound.

He then unloosened the boy from his bonds and laid them all on the Bible and plead with the young men and women to accept the Christ rather than Barabbas. "Men and women," said the evangelist, "accept Jesus, the only one who can free you of the awful bonds of sin which binds you down."

One person was led to Christ after the services.

"If Washington Should Come to Life"

BY GEORGE WASHINGTON JR.

If Washington should come to life
And see how matters stand,
A smile from George's lips would surely fall.
Instead of all the wasted fields
And plains and barren land,
He'd find the greatest country of them all.
He'd find he's not neglected
That his memory rends the air,
His monuments erected he would find most everywhere.

He'd find a mighty nation
Of men who do and dare,
He'd find he's still the Daddy of them all.

I wonder what he'd think of Mr. Morgan,
And how he'd like political machines,
I wonder if he'd read what Thomas Lawson
Is writing for the monthly magazines.
I wonder if he'd take to Teddy Roosevelt,
I'd like to hear exactly what he'd say,
I wonder if he'd try,
To never tell a lie,
If Washington should come to life today.

He'd marvel at the changes,
As he'd take a look around,
At motor cars he'd surely stop and stare,
I wonder what he'd think of all these railroads underground,
And elevated trains up in the air.
The biograph would phase him
When he'd see the pictures walk;
The phonograph would daze him
When the thing began to talk.
The rush and shove amaze him,
If he ever saw New York
With its wonderous big skyscrapers all around.

He'd soon discover were no second raters,
I know he'd sing the Yankee Doodle Boy.
I wonder if he'd visit our theatres,
I wonder if he'd laugh at Eddie Foy;
I wonder if he'd try to dope the horses,
I wonder what he'd think about Broadway,
He'd buy the New York Journal first,
And then he'd call on Willie Hearst,
If Washington should come to life today.

TWO MINUTES WITH WASHINGTON

In all Things he Was a Just and Noble Man—Possessed a Well Rounded Character and Inspired Confidence

The success of George Washington seemed to spring from his well rounded character, from his unselfishness, from his disinterested patriotism and from his ability to inspire in others confidence and esteem. In war he excelled as a strategist, in peace as a wise and moderate statesman, in all things as a just and noble man. It would be impossible to place one's finger on any particular spot in his career and say, "This was the turning point: this was the place at which Washington was made." More than almost any other character in history he was in all relations the great man, yet it is most difficult to analyze him and tell the particular thing that made him great. Too modest to make a speech, too self depreciative to seek his own advancement, his deeds caused him to shine over all orators and his virtues advanced him over all self-seekers. Few men have received so much adulation, and from this there has been a reaction, yet after all that criticism can do the massive proportions of the man still stand out to challenge the attention of the world.

The Connersville Commercial Club has contracted for an oil painting of the late Hon. Francis T. Roots, which will be hung on the walls of the club rooms.

At the time he was chosen to command the Continental armies Washington had rendered no especial conspicuous service to single him out from his fellows. His selection for that high post was rather due to the general esteem in which he was held. There are few examples in which the individual integrity that we usually denominate character counted so much for success as in the case of Washington.

He had a prodigious temper, yet held it in check; he loved wealth and possessed more of it than almost any other man in the colonies, yet he would not accept pay for his military services; he met severe reverses in his campaign, yet was too great to be crushed by them; he had conspicuous faults that would have destroyed a smaller man, yet his general rectitude was so great that it dwarfed the minor defects.

There is a general sentiment in mankind that worth means success. Our faith in this proposition is often shaken, but the case of Washington would seem to prove it true.

PATRIOTIC SONS WILL OBSERVE ANNUAL CUSTOM

Will Have Appropriate Exercises
Monday Night—Will Attend
Church Sunday Evening

The Patriotic Order Sons of America have made arrangements for the celebration of Washington's birthday on Monday evening at their lodge rooms, which is their annual custom.

The wives of the members, the ministers of this city and a few other friends will be present. Rev. R. W. Abberley has been asked to make a short address.

The order will go in a body to the Christian church on Sunday evening, together with the W. R. O. and G. A. R. to hear Rev. Abberley's patriotic lecture sermon on Washington.

TWO BIG DAYS FOR COUNTY FAIR

Watson and Bryan will Probably Speak on their Respective Days

YOUNG MEN HAVE IDEAS

Which will be Put into Execution
—A Republican and Democratic Day

A novel plan that will bring thousands of people to Rushville during the next county fair, is now under way, and in all probability will be put into execution.

Since the infusion of new and young blood at the pilot and behind the reins a number of things have been contemplated that will tend to make the Rush county fair the banner fair of Eastern Indiana, and judging from the manner they are planning things and the "flying start" the new directors have taken, that hope will in all probability be fulfilled.

But the one big feature this year will likely be of a political nature. Being campaign year, and but a few months before the election, it goes without saying that much interest and enthusiasm will be manifested. A Republican and a Democratic day will be observed, Tuesday and Thursday, being the days selected for the events. Committees representing each of the parties in the county will meet and "cut the cards" for the choice of days.

Already it is planned by the Democrats to bring their peerless leader, William J. Bryan, here for the occasion. Of course the Republicans have many big men in their ranks from which to select a prominent speaker or two, but in all probability James E. Watson, Republican nominee for the governorship of Indiana, will be the principal Republican speaker.

HOW IT WILL BE OBSERVED HERE

Washington's Birthday will Only be Observed in a Commercial Way

Tomorrow, Washington's Birthday, being a legal holiday, all the banks and saloons in the city will close. The postoffice will close at 10 o'clock in the morning and the rural route carriers will not go out until Monday morning. The city schools held exercises appropriate of the occasion this afternoon, honoring the Father of this country.

TWENTY TWO SMALLPOX CASES

Are Reported to the Shelby
County Board of Health
From Fountaintown

THE SCHOOLS ARE CLOSED

And Every Effort is Being Made to Check Spread of Dreaded Disease

The worst seige of smallpox effecting Shelby county in many years, prevails at Fountaintown, VanBuren township, twenty-two residents of the little hamlet and adjoining territory being confined in quarantined homes suffering from the dread malady. Fifteen of these cases have been reported to Dr. H. E. Phares, secretary of the county board of health. The township physicians are instructed by Dr. Phares to quarantine all houses where the disease makes an appearance. Several new cases were discovered Thursday, one being in the vicinity of Morristown. A telephone message from Fountaintown Thursday evening conveyed the information the residents of the township are much alarmed fearing a general spread of the disease. No severe cases have developed but Dr. Phares is using every precaution.

The physicians of Fountaintown diagnosed the first case as chicken pox, but Phares readily convinced them the afflicted were sufferers of smallpox. No fatalities have resulted.

The schools closed one week ago Monday and Dr. Phares has ordered a cessation of all public meetings, church services, dances, parties or other means of disseminating the smallpox germs.

The physicians of Fountaintown are empowered to quarantine every home where there is the slightest manifestation of a contraction of the disease.

Business in the little city is practically at a standstill and few strangers enter the town.

DEATH SENTENCE

Military Court Imposes Extreme

Penalty Upon Gen.

Stoessel.

SURRENDERED FORTRESS

Court Finds That Commander of Port Arthur Had Not Exhausted All Means of Defense.

One of His Fellow Defendants Is Reprimanded, the Other Two Being Acquitted.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 21.—Lieutenant General Stoessel was condemned to death last evening by a military court for the surrender of Port Arthur to the Japanese.

General Fock, who commanded the Fourth East Siberian division of Port Arthur, was ordered reprimanded for a disciplinary offense, which was not connected with the surrender, and General Smyrnoff, acting commander of the fortress, and Major General Reiss, chief of staff to General Stoessel, were acquitted of the charges against them for lack of proof. The court recommended that the death sentence upon Lieutenant General Stoessel be commuted to ten years' imprisonment in a fortress and that he be excluded from the service.

General Vodar, president of the court, read the sentences amid a tense silence. By a great effort of self-control General Stoessel maintained a rigid, soldier-like impassivity. General Smirnoff also was seemingly unmoved, but there were tears in the eyes of General Reisse.

The sentence of death was pronounced upon General Stoessel "for surrendering the fortress before all the means of defense had been exhausted; for failing to enforce his authority, and for military misdemeanors."

Commutation of the sentence was asked on the ground that "Port Arthur, beset by overwhelming forces, defended itself under General Stoessel's leadership with unexampled stubbornness and filled the world with astonishment at the heroic courage of its garrison; that several assaults had been repulsed with tremendous losses on the part of the enemy; that General Stoessel throughout the siege had maintained the heroic courage of the defenders, and finally that he had taken energetic part in three campaigns."

Before the sentence was read measures were taken to prevent a demonstration in favor of Stoessel by a number of the younger officers and witnesses who were present. These later sent a dispatch to the empress saying that they would humbly bear testimony that General Stoessel was the soul of the defense of Port Arthur; that he had always encouraged and put heart into the garrison, and that in case of war they would wish to serve again under such a hero. They asked the empress graciously to bespeak from the emperor a full pardon.

There was a dramatic moment after the reading of the sentence when a detachment of soldiers filed into the hall. The spectators, thinking that they were about to see General Stoessel, displayed great excitement, several women fainting. It developed, however, that this was merely a guard for the dispersal of the court. General Stoessel, who was accompanied by his son, was the object of a sympathetic demonstration, friends kissing and shaking him by the hand as he left the court leaning on his son's shoulder.

A public festival is being organized by the municipality of St. Petersburg in honor of the defenders of the fortress.

A BIASED REPORT

Jealous Officer's Charges the Basis of Stoessel's Trial.

The passing of the sentence of death upon Lieutenant General Stoessel is a harsh and tragic ending to the career of this Russian commander, who three years ago was acclaimed around the world as the "hero of Port Arthur." The general, who was decorated by Emperor William of Germany and honored by the Russian army for his gallant defense of the Port Arthur forress, has now been tried and found wanting in courage and capability by his own people and sentenced to give up his life to the fetish of army prejudice. Even Stoessel's former enemies, the Japanese, have come forward to say that he does not deserve this treatment at the hands of his country.

In his last words before the court, General Stoessel, broken in health and fortune, accepted full responsibility for the surrender of Port Arthur and pleaded for the death sentence if the court should decide that a crime had been committed.

The basis of the indictments upon which Lieutenant General Stoessel, General Fock and General Reiss were tried for their lives, was a secret report made by General Smyrnoff on the defense of Port Arthur. Smyrnoff was acting commandant of the fortress, Stoessel being commander of the Kwang Tung peninsula. Smyrnoff categorically accused Stoessel of cowardice and incapacity, and finally of the deliberate and treasonable hastening of the surrender to save his own life and in defiance of the decisions of two successive councils of war. The report was extremely biased. It breathed the most bitter personal enmity and showed that the high officers of the Port Arthur garrison, in the darkest days of the siege were almost at one another's throats.

APPREHENSION GROUNDLESS

No Trouble Anticipated Over Settlement of Railway Wage Disputes.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Industrial and financial circles have been more or less concerned over what they regard as a prospect that the railroads of the country have in contemplation a general reduction in the wages of their employees.

Such apprehension is practically groundless. Information which has reached the interstate commerce commission, particularly and other officers of the government who have a direct or an indirect interest in railroad and industrial matters, indicates clearly that there is no concerted action on the part of American railways to make general changes in their wage scales at this time or in the near future. Instances of postponed readjustment of wage scales are cited in the cases of three or four Southern systems, the Southern railway, the Louisville & Nashville, the Seaboard Air Line and the Atlantic Coast line being named as practically the only roads in the country which may be affected.

It is the intention of the officials of the lines named to consider with their employees the question of a readjustment of some at least of the wage scales now in force with a view to reducing their operating expenses, which they regard as necessary. The plans of the officials have not been worked out yet, because it is their desire first to present the situation which confronts them fairly and impartially to their employees. It is expected that the employees may meet them half way and no serious difficulties are anticipated.

SHOOK ENTIRE REGION

Dynamite Explosion at Berkeley Claims Twenty-Eight Victims. Berkeley, Cal., Feb. 21.—With a force that shook the entire Bay region like an earthquake, the packing house of the Hercules powder works at Pinole, fourteen miles north of here, blew up yesterday afternoon, and in the explosion four white men and twenty-four Chinamen were killed. Ten tons of dynamite went up in the terrible blast, shattering the sheds to dust and splinters. The twenty-eight dead included every man who was at work in the packing house. Flames burst forth in the ruins following the explosion and threatened the gelatine house, where two score girls were at work. A panic followed and many were cut by flying glass and crushed and trampled in the mad rush for the doors. No Thought of Divorce. Matteawan, N. Y., Feb. 21.—Attorneys Daniel O'Reilly and A. Russell Peabody, after consultation for two hours with Harry K. Thaw at the asylum, declared that Thaw had no intention of bringing suit for divorce and that all rumors of an approaching attempt to annul his marriage with Evelyn Nesbit Thaw were groundless.

INDIANA POLITICS

BY ROBERT G. TUCKER

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 21.—The organization which has controlled the Democratic party in local affairs for the last fifteen years is now undergoing the most terrific bombardment in its history. The forces that are opposed to it seem confident that they will carry a majority of the precincts this afternoon. An unusual effort has been made to arouse the element of the party that never goes to primaries for reorganization of the committee. Edward Raub, city chairman, issued a statement urging all members of the party to go to the polls. The fight, he said, is against machine rule. The Republicans will hold their primaries at the same time. There is no opposition to the re-election of John Ruckelshaus, chairman, and Fred Aiken, secretary of the Republican county committee.

Four candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor, State Chairman Stokes Jackson, and William A. Culp of Washington, candidate for the Second district congressional nomination, will be the principal speakers at a banquet to be given in the student building of Indiana university Saturday night by the Jackson Club of Indiana university. Samuel M. Ralston of Lebanon, L. Ert Slack of Franklin, Carrol K. McCullough and Thomas R. Marshall are the governorship candidates who have accepted invitations to address the banquet. Other speakers will be Dr. Robert J. Aley of the university faculty, probable candidate for the congressional nomination; John W. Cravens, registrar of the university, and Robert W. Miers, ex-congressman from that district. Preparations are being made to seat 200 banqueters. Paul G. Davis of Indianapolis, president of the Jackson club, will act as toastmaster at the banquet.

The Indiana railroad commission has handed down an opinion that it is without authority to establish reciprocal demurrage between railroads and shippers. The decision is of importance to the shippers of the state, who took an active part in the proceedings which were instituted by the Indiana Bridge company of Muncie. Forty-seven railroad companies were made defendants. The commission says that any attempt on its part to establish a reciprocal demurrage plan would be overruled by the court unless the law is amended to give it the power. It pointed to the refusal of the last legislature to enact a reciprocal demurrage law. The shippers probably will drop the matter until the next legislature, when another attempt will be made to pass a law on the subject.

The Republican Second district convention will be held March 25. Notification to that effect has been sent out by Joe Barr, the district chairman. Congressman Chaney of Sullivan will have no opposition for renomination.

CURRENT COMMENT

There is some funny fighting in the French campaign against the tribesmen of Morocco. The world reads of the heroism of the soldiers of France—mostly Arabs from Algeria—in many brushes with the Moors, and then the dispatches wind up by telling of half a dozen men wounded. It carries one back to the days of the Cuban revolution.

A New York preacher wants the women in his congregation to remove their headwear because "it is mighty hard to talk through a lot of hats." Quite right. One at a time is enough for any one.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES

Prices have moved decisively upward in the New York stock market. Senator Asbury Churchwell-Latimer of South Carolina is dead following an operation a few days ago for appendicitis.

The senate committee on Indian affairs has increased from $25,000 to $40,000 the appropriation for the suppression of the traffic in intoxicating liquors among the Indians.

The Tri-City State bank at Madison, Ill., has closed its doors. It is currently rumored that the action resulted after an investigation of the accounts of a trusted employee.

Arrangements have been completed for a wrestling match for the championship of the world between Gotch and Hackenschmidt, to be held at Chicago on the evening of April 3.

PERUVIANS SADDENED

They Regret That Admiral Evans Cannot Participate in Festivities.

Callao, Feb. 21.—The only regrettable feature of the entertainments arranged in honor of the American battleship fleet is the fact that the commander himself, Rear Admiral Evans, will not be able to attend. It is stated that Admiral Evans, who has been suffering almost from the beginning of the voyage from rheumatism, is slightly better, but he does not feel that he should risk the danger of coming ashore. Rear Admiral Thomas, commander of the second squadron, will represent him at the official ceremonies attendant upon the visit, but Rear Admiral Evans is still the commander of the fleet.

The battleships will remain here probably for ten days, and will be joined by the torpedo boat flotilla near the close of their stay at Callao. Arrangements have been made for festivities of all kinds, including a bullfight at which not less than 5,000 of the bluejackets will be seen, and a regatta for which preparations have been going on for several weeks. President Pardo will give a public reception to the officers this afternoon and Washington's birthday will be made a gala occasion.

In a French Chateau in Winter.

It is not all bliss to be invited to a French chateau in midwinter, no matter how distinguished the host or how romantic and artistic the domicile. At least it isn't for the steam heated Bostonian, lapped in the luxury of summer warmth. A visitor to a distractingly lovely abode near Fontainebleau says he put in twenty-four hours of physical anguish there and simply came away wondering how his hosts endured the arctic temperature of the rooms. "If I meant to live in foreign lands," says this shivering person, "I would go through the chilling process which inures human flesh and blood in France. What do these people do to render the blood in their veins to course like fire and act like an eternal furnace?" That's a question Americans abroad might well like to have answered.—Boston Herald.

Ability to Make Money Comes From God.

By the Right Rev. ROBERT L. PADDOCK, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Eastern Oregon.

GOD calls some men to be lawyers, whose duty it shall be to see that wise laws are enacted and justice done, as CERTAINLY as he does others to preach the gospel. He calls some men also to be physicians to heal the sick, not by direct methods of his own, but by the use of men—the same plan he follows in converting Africa and Asia. It is a MIRACLE just as truly as were the miracles recorded in the gospels.

HE CALLS SOME MEN TO MAKE MONEY—A MILLION IT MAY BE IN ONE CASE, A THOUSAND IN ANOTHER. WHATEVER DIFFERENCE THERE MAY BE BETWEEN THE MEN WHO MAKE THESE TWO SUMS IS GOD GIVEN, AND THE MILLION MEN SHOULD REALIZE THAT FACT AND LIVE ACCORDINGLY.

The ideal to be aimed at is that the men capable of accumulating a million dollars or doing heroic deeds, of inventing or discovering new things, SHALL REALIZE THEIR STEWARDSHIP, not only of their talents, but also of accumulations arising from those talents.

POP MAKER POPS ANSWER

Local Manufacturer of Soft Drinks, Says Evangelist Willis Made an Untrue Statement.

BY J. H. BRECHEISEN

Insomuch as it has been stated at a public meeting—an evangelistic service if you please—during the past week that alcohol was placed in pop, I believe in all fairness that a word from me would be timely. First of all I wish to state that I am and have been engaged in the manufacture of soft drinks for many years. During that time I have met and come in contact with no end of other manufacturers, and I feel that I am in a position to honestly say that the good brother who declared that there was alcohol in pop, has either been misinformed or does not know what he is talking about. He says it is put there to catch the young fellows: to create an appetite for strong intoxicants that will grow. The idea is simply ridiculous. To begin with, the good brother should appreciate that we manufacturers of temperance beverages must depend on the temperance people for a livelihood. If one in the habit of drinking pop or any other soft drink would be weaned away to drink an intoxicant, then we are losing a customer, and losing money by such a change. If we would put anything in our soft drinks, it would be an ingredient to prevent creating a taste for intoxicants and we would have the whole world drinking temperance drinks. But, of course, nothing is put in whatever. "The assertion is so ridiculous that it is hardly worthy of refutation. How about our pure food laws and the Federal authorities who watch with Argus eyes attempts made to put intoxicants up in "blind packages?" Public men should investigate and public men should think before they make "wing-chance assertions for facts."

ABOLITION OF LIQUOR MAKES GOOD TIMES

By Elijah Hope.

No! No! Chicago has not gone "dry," but word has come through the commercial reports from Cincinnati stating that stock in brewing and distilling companies has experienced a serious lowering of values, because of the unfavorable outlook for the future of the trade.

If the above is a foretoken of calamity, let us have some more of it. It would not be a great advantage if many were compelled to curtail expenses along the line above referred to.

A few months ago William E. Curtis gave a lengthy report of the temperance situation in the Southern States that electrified the country from ocean to ocean. Now he has sent out another report through the columns of the Chicago Record-Herald, in which he tells the story of one year's prohibitory law in Kansas City, Kansas.

The article referred to is quite lengthy, and I shall give but two or three quotations:

"The abolition of liquor selling has been a decided benefit instead of injury to the business interests of the city. The deposits of our banks have increased more than $2,000,000 since the saloons were closed, while the merchants have had to employ additional clerks to attend to their business."

A HAPPY DRUMMER.

He Won the Applause of the Eccentric Hans von Bulow.

Hans von Bulow, the famous leader and composer, was one of the most eccentric members of a profession wherein eccentricity is common. It is related that one day, while walking the streets of Vienna, Bulow came upon a regimental band on its way to the castle. Immediately he ran to the middle of the street and joined the small boys about the drummer. Following the band, he kept bowing to the surprised drummer, applauding him at almost every beat.

"That is rhythm! Excellent! That's the way I like to hear it!" he continued to ejaculate, to the surprise of all and to the great delight of the small boys.

Persons in the street began to recognize the famous pianist and joined the procession, so that the band had one of the largest audiences to which it had ever played.

Bulow listened attentively to the end of the last piece and then made a deep bow before the drummer and his instrument.

"Thank you," he said. "That was refreshing! That puts my nerves in good condition again!"

It is said that when the drummer learned who his strange admirer was he was the proudest man in the regiment.—St. Louis Republic.

THE WIZARD WINS

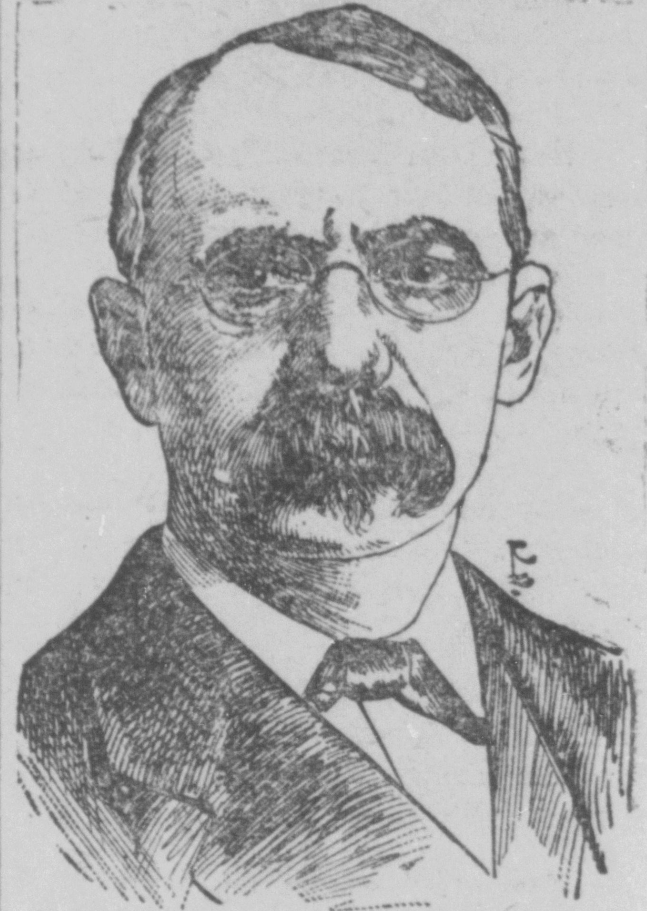

Harriman Given Power by Court to Reduce Fish to the Ranks.

THE INJUNCTION DISSOLVED

Restraint Imposed Upon the Harriman Interests Lifted by Order of Judge Ball at Chicago.

By This Decision Harriman Has Power to Retire Fish From I. C.'s Official Family.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Judge Ball of the superior court dissolved the injunction secured last October by Stuyvesant Fish, by virtue of which the Harriman interests were restrained from voting 281,231 shares of the capital stock of the Illinois Central railroad at the annual meeting of the company. The theory on which counsel for Mr. Fish based their arguments in support of the injunction—that it was contrary to the laws and public policy of the state of Illinois to allow foreign corporations to own and vote the stock of domestic corporations, was denied by the court.

Under the ruling of the court the previously enjoined stock, which is held by the Union Pacific Railroad company and by the Railroad Securities Company of New Jersey, can be voted at the annual meeting of the Illinois Central, which is to be held in this city on March 2.

There is no appeal from the decision handed down by Judge Ball, but it is considered probable that Mr. Fish will take further legal steps to regain possession of the Illinois Central.

Judge E. B. Farrar of New Orleans, who has acted leading counsel for Mr. Fish throughout the controversy, said that the case will now be tried on its merits, but declined to say how quickly new proceedings will be instituted.

By this decision E. H. Harriman, the "Wizard of Wall Street," wins complete control of the Illinois Central railroad. Of the Fish fight Judge Ball practically made sport. "If it were not for the fact that the name of Harriman is a name to conjure with," he said, "these allegations (of Fish) might not be taken seriously." Fish is practically ousted from power by the decision. His defeat as director is expected from the Harriman faction at the next annual meeting, on March 2. Harriman now has the power to throw him completely out of the official family of the railroad. Harriman gets his power from the fact that the Union Pacific and the Railway Securities company are permitted to vote their shares in the annual election. Harriman holds these proxies, and practically owns the shares.

As soon as the decision, which contained almost 10,000 words, was concluded there was a veritable stampede in the courtroom, lawyers and messengers making a rush for the doors in order to announce the result. They ran into various rooms seeking for telephones, and tore headlong for the elevators, while others flew wildly down the stairways. So much excitement and confusion has not been witnessed in the county courthouse for many years.

The court declared that Mr. Fish had not been able to prove any of his contentions that the domination of the Illinois Central by Mr. Harriman would be to its detriment, and had also failed to show that the interests of stockholders would be injured thereby. The court further declared that if the name of Mr. Harriman was not a name to conjure with, many of the allegations made in the case would not be considered seriously. He was compelled to act, he said, on facts alleged and proved and not fears "or supposed prophecies."

Decapitated His Officer.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Feb. 21.—George Dixon, a carpenter on the American collier Abarenda, killed Walter Weichert, chief officer of the collier, yesterday afternoon. The crime was committed on board the vessel. Dixon swung at Weichert with an ax and completely severed his head. Weichert recently had Dixon placed in irons on account of disobedience, and this probably was the motive.

CAME IN ON TIDE OF THE HARD TIMES

Glen Taylor Had a Rough Time in Business Enterprise in New Mexico

Hard times brought Glen Taylor to this city to seek employment. He formerly lived at Manila, but for ten months has been conducting a tailor shop in a small town in New Mexico. An itinerant tailor from Kansas City was employed by "Taylor the Tailor," and when the financial flurry of a few weeks ago hit the place, the employee acting on the maxim of a stitch in time saves nine, quietly packed up everything "packable" and between two days carried away most of the tailoring establishment. It put a crimp in Taylor's business enterprise and a few days afterwards found him wiring "papa" for car fare. Taylor is now employed at the Whitehead cafe.

Were the Active Members of the Ladies Musicales at the Peter's Home

GIVEN IN APPRECIATION

By the Associate Members who Have Enjoyed Many Fine Musical Programs

A most delightful and entertaining social meeting of the Ladies Musicales was held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Walter Peters in North Perkins street. It was the occasion of the associate members entertaining the active members of the Rushville's leading musical organization. Ten associate members assisted the hosts. Mrs. Peters in receiving and caring for the guests, of which there were about one hundred.

Tastefully decorated was the Peters home with the musical colors and patriotic hangings, apropos of the occasion, the eve of George Washington's birthday. The reception room and parlors were hung in the national colors, while the dining room was given over to green and white. On the dining room table, crossed at the side of lighted candles were hats, while a large wooden "cherry tree center" hung in a cluster of green and white garlands from the chandelier. White and blue carnations graced the center of the table in a cut glass centerpiece. One of the old fashioned hatchets hanging at the landing leading to the upstairs rooms was an old family heirloom, over two hundred years old.

The upstairs rooms were furnished throughout in antique furniture, some of it hundreds of years old.

The Wagoner orchestra furnished the music for the occasion. The Misses Blanche Catherine Peters and Vivian Vance pinned favors of miniature flags on the guests as they were served with a collation of Neapolitan ice cream in red, white and blue colors, and cake and coffee. The entire afternoon was most enjoyably spent in a social way.

Old Medicine.

The following are among some of the fantastic cures presented by the medical authorities of early times, as given by Dr. Hugo Magnus in his book, "Superstition in Medicine."

Remedy Against Bellyache: "Take the heart from the living heart and wear it as an amulet at the left thigh."

—Alexander of Tralles.
Remedy Against Epilepsy (advised by the Physician, Moschion, Diorthotes, Alexander of Tralles, Book I, Chapter XV, page 570): "The forehead of an ass tied to the skin of the patient and worn."

"Gather iris, peonies and nightshade when the moon is in the wane, pack them into linen and wear as an amulet." Advised by the magician Osthanes, Alexander of Tralles, Book I, Chapter XV, page 566.

The Australian Natives.

An English author writes of the Australian natives: "Between tribe and tribe war for purposes of territorial aggrandizement is unknown. They may fight about women or in the blood feud, for, as nobody is supposed to die a natural death, every death is thought to be caused by hostile magic. Fights are not now resolutely waged, but merely to draw first blood, as a rule, and, as there are no conquests, there are no slaves and very little material progress. There are no hereditary chiefs, though among some socially advanced tribes a kind of magistracy or a 'moderation' of local groups in the tribal general assembly is hereditary in the male line."

The Fighting Chance.

Copyright, 1906, by Robert W. Chambers.

They became unreasonably gay almost immediately, though the beverage scarcely accounted for the delicate intoxication that seemed to creep into their veins. Leila exchanged glance after glance with Plank. Siward, alternately the leader in it all, then the enchanted listener, bewitched, enthralled, felt care slipping from his shoulders like a mantle and sadness exhaling from a heart that was beating strongly, steadily, fearlessly—as a heart should beat in the breast of him who has taken at last his fighting chance. He took it now under her eyes for honor, for manhood and for the ideal which had made manhood no longer an empty term muttered in desperation by a sick body and a mind too sick to control it.

Yes, at last the lifelong battle was on. He knew it. He knew, too, whatever his fate with her or without her he must always go on with the battle for the safeguarding of that manhood the consciousness of which she had aroused.

All he knew was that, through the medium of his love for her, whatever in him of the spiritual remained or had been generated, was now awake, alive, strong, vital, indestructible—an impalpable current flowing from a sane intelligence, through medium of her, back to the eternal truth, returning always, always, to the deathless source from whence it came.

Lingering over the fruit, the champagne breaking in the glasses standing on the table between them, rim to rim, Leila and Plank had fallen into a low, desultory, yet guarded exchange of words and silences.

Sylvia sprang up and pushed her chair into the farther corner against the balcony rail, where no light fell except the radiance of the stars. Here Siward joined her, dragging his chair around so that it faced her as she leaned back, tilted against a shadowy column.

In the darkness his hand encountered hers on the wooden rail, and the tremor of the contact silenced her. She freed one finger, then let it rest with its slender fellow prisoners. There was no use in trying to speak just then—utterly useless her voice in the soft, rounded throat imprisoned by the swelling pulses that tightened and hammered and tightened.

Years seemed to fall away from her, slipping back, back into girlhood, into childhood, drawing not her alone on the gliding tide, but carrying him with her. An exquisite languor held her. Drifting deliciously, her eyes sometimes meeting his, sometimes lost in the magic of her reverie, she lay there in her chair, her unresisting fingers locked in his.

Odd little thoughts came hovering into her reverie—thoughts that seemed distantly familiar, the direct, unconscious impulses of a child. To feel was once more the only motive for expression; to think fearlessly was once more inherent; to desire was to demand—unlock her lips, naively, and ask for what she wished.

Under the spell she turned her blue gaze on him, and her lips parted without a tremor.

"What do you offer for what you ask? And do you still ask it? Is it me you are asking me for? Because you love me? And what do you give—love?"

"Weigh it with the other," he said. "I have—often—every moment since I have known you. And what a winter!" Her voice was almost inaudible. "What a winter—without you!"

"That hell is ended for me too, Sylvia, I know what I ask. And I ask. I know what I offer. Will you take it?"

"Yes," she said. He rose, blindly. She stood up, pale, wide eyed, confronting him, stammering out the bargain:

"I take all—every virtue, every vice of you. I give all—all, all I have been, all I am, all I shall be! Is that enough? Oh, if there were only more to give! Stephen, if there were only more!"

Her hands had fallen into his, and they looked each other in the eyes.

Suddenly through the hush of the enchanted moment a sudden sound broke, the sound of a voice they knew, threateningly raised, louder and louder, growling, profanely menacing.

Aghast, they turned in the darkness, peering toward the lighted space beyond. Leroy Mortimer, his face shockingly congested, stood unsteadily balancing there, confronting his wife, who sat staring at him in horror. At the same instant Plank rose and laid a hand on Mortimer's shoulder, but Mortimer shook him off with a warning oath.

"You and I will settle with each other tomorrow!" he said thickly, pointing a puffy finger at Plank. "You'll find me at the Algonquin Trust. Do you hear? That's where you'll settle this matter—in the president's office!" He stood swaying and leaning at Plank, repeating loudly: "In Quarrier's office! Understand? That's where you'll settle up! See!"

Leila, white face quivering, shrank as though he had struck her, and he turned on her again, grinning: "As for you, you come home! And that'll be about all for yours."

"Are you insane to make a scene like this?" said Plank.

But Mortimer swung on him insultingly and said: "That's about all from you! Leila, are you coming?"

He stepped heavily toward her, but Plank's sudden crushing grip was on his fat arm above the elbow, and he emitted a roar of surprise and pain.

"Don't touch him! Don't, in heaven's name!" stammered Leila as Plank, releasing him, stepped back beside her chair. "Can't you see that I must go with him? I—I must go!" She cast one terrified glance around her, where scores of strange faces met hers, and at every table people were standing up to see better.

Plank, who had dropped Mortimer's arm as the latter emitted his bellow of amazement, stepped toward him again, dropping his voice as he spoke.

"You go! Do you hear?" he said quietly. "I'll do what you ask me tomorrow. I will do what you ask if you'll go now."

"You come! Do you hear?" snarled Mortimer, turning on his wife, who had already risen. "If you don't I'll make a row here that you'll never hear the end of as long as you live. And there'll be nothing to talk over in Quarrier's office if I do."

Leila looked at Plank, rose and moved swiftly toward the veranda steps, her head resolutely lowered, the burning shame flaming in her face. Mortimer cast one triumphant glance at Plank, then waddled unsteadily after his wife.

"Hold on," he growled; "I've a car here! I'll drive you back—wait! Here it is! Here we are!" And to Quarrier's machinist he said: "You get into the tonneau. I want to show Mrs. Mortimer what night driving is. Do you hear? I tell you I'm going to drive this machine and show you how!"

Leila scarcely heard him. She obeyed the impulse of his hand on her arm and mounted to the seat, staring straight ahead of her with dazed and straining eyes that saw nothing.

Then Mortimer clambered to his seat and without an instant's warning opened up and seized the wheel.

Unprepared, the machinist attempted to swing aboard, missed his footing in the uncertain light and fell sprawling on the gravel. Plank saw him from the veranda and instantly vaulted the rail to the lawn below.

"You d—n fool!" yelled Mortimer, looking around. "What do you think you'll do?" And he clapped on full speed as Plank made a leap for the car and missed.

Mortimer laughed and turned his head to look back, and the next instant something seemed to wrench the steering wheel from its roots. There was a blinding glare of light, a scream, and the great machine bounded into the air full length, turned completely over and lay across a flower bed, partly on one side.

Something was afire too. Men were rushing from the verandas, women screamed and stood up wringing their hands. A mounted policeman came galloping through the darkness. People shouted: "Throw sand on it! Get shovels, for God's sake! Lift that tonneau. There's a woman under it!"

But they were mistaken, for Leila lay at the foot of the slope, one little bloody hand clutching the dead grass, and Plank knelt beside her, giving his orders quietly to those who came running down the hill from the roadway above, which was now fiercely illuminated by burning gasoline. At last they got sand enough to quench the fire and men sufficient to lift the weight from the dead man's neck and drag what was left of him on to the grass.

"Don't look!" whispered Siward drawing Sylvia back.

He and she both had put their shoulders to the tonneau along with the others, and now they stood there together in the shifting lantern light, sickened, shivering under the summer stars, staring at the gathering crowd around that shapeless lump on the grass.

Plank passed them, walking beside an improvised stretcher, calm, almost smiling, as Sylvia sprang forward with a little sob of inquiry.

"There's the doctor over there. That man is a doctor. He knows," repeated Plank with studied deliberation, looking down at Leila's deathly face. "He says it's all right. He says he'll get a candle and that he can tell by the flame's effect on the pupils of the eyes what exactly is the matter. No," to Siward, beside him, pressing forward through the crowd which eddied from the dead man to the stretcher, "no, there is not a bone broken. She is stunned, that's all. She fell in the shrubbery. We'll have an ambulance here pretty quick. Stephen," using his first name unconsciously. "Won't you look out for Sylvia? I'm going back on the ambulance. If you'll find somebody to drive my machine I wish you would take Sylvia back. No, I don't want you to drive, Stephen—if you don't mind. Get that machinist, please. I'm rattled, and I don't want you to drive."

Leila lay on the stretcher, her bloodless face upturned to the stars. Beyond, under a blanket, something else lay very still on the lawn.

Plank beckoned a policeman and whispered to him.

Then, far away in the darkness, a distant clamor grew on the night air, nearer, nearer.

Plank, standing beside the stretcher, raised his head, listening to the ambulance arriving at full speed.

ROW IN PHILADELPHIA

Foreigners Flout the Red Flag and Get in Bad With the Police.

Philadelphia, Feb. 21.—The marching of nearly a thousand foreigners upon the city hall, where they said they intended to make demands upon Mayor Reyburn for work, precipitated a riot in Broad street late yesterday afternoon in which twenty persons were injured before the police dispersed the marchers and arrested fourteen of them.

The men, most of whom were Italians and Poles, marched from the foreign settlement in the lower section of the city. The leaders and a score of others carried red flags having a black border. When they reached Broad street, a few blocks below the city hall, several wagons attempted to pass through the line. The drivers were dragged from their seats by the marchers and beaten. Police ran to the rescue and a riot call was sent in. When the reserves hurried down upon the marchers a general riot was in progress.

Some of the marchers drew revolvers and began firing at the police, and the mounted officers riding into the center of the fight, used their clubs right and left upon the heads of the leaders. In the melee three policemen were shot and slightly wounded and Charles Monn, who was watching the fight, was struck in the leg by a stray bullet. Reserve Officer Pyott was beaten and is in a hospital, as is Policeman Smith, who first went to the rescue of the drivers. Harry Druding, one of these, was beaten and nearly stripped of his clothing. Fourteen participants in the demonstration were severely clubbed and had to be sent to a hospital.

Joseph Troi is declared by the police to have been the leader of the marchers. The prisoners are charged with inciting a riot. Nearly all of those arrested carried weapons of some sort.

Seattle's View of It.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 20.—The Seattle chamber of commerce has addressed a memorial to President Roosevelt and Secretary Root to the effect that its members believe that a majority of the people of the Pacific coast are not in favor of any immigration law that will treat differently the people of Japan from the way in which the inhabitants of any European country are treated.

AMUSEMENTS

One of the most enjoyable crowds of the season was in attendance at the Kramer Rink last night. Beginning next week there will be no skating on Mondays. A private party will hold the boards on Tuesdays. Skating every afternoon and night the balance of the week.

To the average theatre goer, who is sick and tired of "wild west" plays, of "wronged female" problem dramas, of trivial musical comedies and of "By Gosh" farmyard pastorals, "Bad Hicks, the Yankee Doodle Boy" will come as a delightful relief. It is a happy combination of all that is good in theatricals—lots of pure clean comedy, some pathos, a little melodrama and plenty of music, song and dance. It is one of those shows that invigorates with the vital warmth of a sun bath. It appeals to everyone who seeks diversion. The entire entertainment is of a character that not only lifts the shadow of home and business cares, but removes the faintest fear of an aftermath of conscience smiting. "The Yankee Doodle Boy" will be at the Grand Thursday, February 27th. Seats on sale at Hargrove & Mullins.

Heat of the Sun.

It has been computed that the temperature of the surface of the sun would be expressed by 18,000 degrees of Fahrenheit's thermometer, or between eighty and ninety times the temperature of boiling water. This is about five times the highest temperature that man is able to produce by artificial means. The light given off from the surface of the sun is reckoned as being 5,300 times more intense than that of the molten metal in a Bessemer converter, though that is of an almost blinding brilliancy. If we compare it with oxyhydrogen flame, the sun sheds a light equal to 146 times the intensity of the limelight.

Children's Favorite Toys.

A hundred and thirty-two schoolboys of Paris and seventy-two girls were invited to describe their preferences in the way of toys. Among the former thirty-one voted for a railway train, twenty-three for tin soldiers, ten for steam engines, nine for building bricks and eight for toy typewriters and mechanical horses. Forty girls—a solid majority—declared without hesitation that a doll was superior to any other implement of recreation. The super-child seems, happily, a long way off.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Indiana Flood Sufferers In Constant Fear of Losing Homes.

THE WATERS STILL RISING

It Is Now Thought That High Water
Mark Will Be Reached In Sections of Flooded District.

Refugees Flocking Into the Cities or Seeking Safety With Neighbors on Higher Ground.

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 21.—The Ohio river is still rising at this port, and has passed the forty-foot stage. Last night was one of sleeplessness, not unmixed with terror, for many people in the lowlands whose homes are surrounded by water. It is feared that the heavy snow will add another foot to the one already here, as the snow-fall in some sections of southern Indiana, western Kentucky and southern Illinois was the heaviest in many years. The western division of the Louisville & Nashville railway, between this city and St. Louis, suffered greatly from heavy snow. All trains were delayed, and many drifts five feet in depth were reported.

The reports from Shawneetown, Ill., say that the people are much disturbed over the news of high water upstream, but no person has yet left the city. The levees are carefully guarded, and as they were weakened by a previous flood, fear is expressed that they will not be able to hold back the great volume of water. Reports from New Harmony and points along the lower Wabash river show that the river is still rising. It is now feared that the entire wheat crop along the Wabash and lower Ohio river will be destroyed. Many refugees from the Indiana side have flocked to Henderson, Ky. The lowlands around Henderson for many miles are covered with water, and much corn has been destroyed.

Reports from Uniontown, Ky., Grandview, Newburg and Enterprise, Ind., with other points, say the refugees continue to pour in, and that they are being well cared for. A rise of two feet will put the river pretty well over the business and residence portion of Uniontown, and there is much uneasiness among the people there. Petersburg reports that it is not thought the stage of the river there will pass that of 1897, but it will pass all high water marks up to that time. Both the east and west forks of White river continue to rise.

GENERAL INVESTIGATION

Of County Offices Will Be Made Following Arrest at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., February 21.—A warrant for the arrest of Emmett commissioners' court, was sworn out on the charge of forgery of the name of Tom O'Neill, a painter. This is the first arrest in the courthouse fraud exposures. The charge on which Huggins was arrested is that he forged the indorsement of O'Neill's name to a warrant for $139 cashed Sept. 17, 1905. He was locked up, but later was released on bond of $1,800.

The bill was for work done by O'Neill as a painter, and entry of it on the claim docket was found in the auditor's office. It appears to have been made out properly by O'Neill or some person with a very shaky hand. On the back, as is required, are the names of John McGregor and Thomas Spafford, commissioners. John McGaughy's name, also required, is not there. The names of McGregor and Spafford, as well as the name of O'Neill at the top, are in the handwriting that has been identified several times as that of Huggins. The warrant is made out in the same handwriting, and the indorsement of it is the same. On the face of things Huggins seems to have written every name used in any connection with the obtaining of the $139. There is no information, however, that O'Neill did not do the work or that he did not get the money.

Irrespective of what the grand jury or County Prosecutor Elliott Hooton may do, the prospects now are that there will be a thorough and complete investigation of the county offices, not only the county commissioners', auditor's and treasurer's offices involved in the recent exposures, but all the other offices.

Got $4,000 for Lost Hand.

Indianapolis, Feb. 21.—An jury in superior court room 1, after being out all night, returned a verdict in favor of Walter Norman against the Holcomb Manufacturing company, for $4,000. Norman, who is a minor, and who sued by his next friend, worked on lathes and saws for the Holcomb company. His left hand was cut off at the base of the fingers by a saw-base slipping while he was at work.

Must Serve Life Sentence.

Indianapolis, Feb. 21.—Sentence for imprisonment for life in the Indiana penitentiary has been passed in criminal court on Charles Ward. Ward killed Thomas McIntyre in the rear of a saloon at Maryland and Davidson streets on the evening of Sunday, May 15, 1907. A jury found him guilty in September. Ward's attorneys filed a motion for a new trial, but that was overruled.

THE HOUSE OF GOD

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week
Beginning Feb. 23, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—The foreign mission work of our denomination; a survey.—Rom. x, 8-15.

The argument of Paul the apostle to the gentiles in this portion of his greatest epistle is clearly in favor of foreign missions. In the opening part of the chapter he expresses his deep interest in the salvation of his countrymen. "Brethren, my heart's desire and prayer to God for Israel is that they might be saved." He then goes on to show that the salvation of the soul may be accomplished through faith in Christ and confession of Christ, and, since salvation is "to every one who believeth," it is equally efficient both for the Jew and the Greek. "There is no difference between the Jew and the Greek, for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon Him, for whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." But the Greek or gentile world had not had the opportunity of believing on Christ and calling upon Him because they had not heard of Him; hence arises his series of questions, ending with "How shall they hear without a preacher?" and again, "How shall they preach except they be sent?"—sent of God through His church. God calls missionaries to their work, but the church, at least today, must send them to their places of labor and support them in their work.

The plain duty of the church, therefore, is to send missionaries unto the foreign as well as to the home field. Up until a little over a century ago the modern church neglected this plain duty, but then the modern movement in foreign missions began. It began, like most successful movements, in "the day of small things." Those who were in favor of the worldwide movement were few in number compared to those who were opposed to it. The difficulties in the way were almost insurmountable. Some countries were closed to the entrance of Christian missionaries. The difficulties and dangers of travel to distant shores can scarcely be appreciated today, when the Atlantic is crossed in a little over five days and a trip around the entire world is no longer a novelty. Months were required for communications between home and foreign lands. It required stout hearts in those days to undertake such arduous toils and labors, to make such sacrifices and to run the risks of treacherous climates, deadly diseases and frequent native opposition and persecution. But God picked His men, His disciples sent them, and the result today is that every country and clime is open to the gospel messengers. In every land "the gospel's joyful sound" has been heard, and every great Christian denomination is putting forth tremendous efforts to win the world for Christ.

In the early years of this great movement much confusion and lack of progress resulted from the overlapping of denominational labors. Indeed, until very recent years this was sadly the case. But today the world is practically divided among the various Christian denominations, and even where they occupy the same fields co-operation and not competition exists. Denominational differences are minimized, and the aim of all is that all men everywhere may hear the gospel and through hearing believe in Christ and, believing in Him, call upon Him and be saved.

This modern arrangement of foreign mission work makes it possible for the members of each denomination to become familiar with the work of its denomination. Christian Endeavorers especially should be thoroughly posted upon all subjects concerning the missionary fields and laborers of its church. In such a meeting as the topic suggests the various fields should be reviewed in connection with the names and the lives of the missionaries and the features of their work surveyed, such as evangelistic, educational and medical work. To know all that is being done by the entire church may be impossible, but no intelligent Endeavorer need lack full information concerning his own denomination's work. Such information will inspire a new interest in and zeal for missions. It will make our prayers more definite and therefore more prevailing before God. It will increase our gifts to missions through our denominational agencies, and it is through these that we should give to this great cause. Moreover, it will increase our joy in giving and multiply the blessings that return to us as a result of our efforts to win the world for Christ.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson VIII.—First Quarter, For
Feb. 23, 1908.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, John v, 1-18.
Memory Verses, 8, 9—Golden Text,
Matt. viii, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1907, by American Press Association.]

The Lord had appointed feasts for Israel in which they might draw near to Him and in which He might specially reveal Himself to them and bless them. A full record of these is found in Lev. xxiii. These feasts had become feasts of the Jews rather than feasts of the Lord (John ii, 13; v, 1; vi, 4; vii, 2), in which they relied upon their outward devotion to Him rather than on His undeserved mercy; hence His saying, "Go ye and learn what that meaneth, I will have mercy and not sacrifice" (Matt. ix, 13; xii, 7). He came to bestow the mercy of God, not to demand sacrifices from them as if they must pay Him for all He did for them. We are all as helpless in the matter of salvation or of service as was the sick and dying boy in last week's lesson to obtain health or his father to give it to him. Here in this lesson is another illustration. There is a pool whose waters at certain seasons are troubled by an angel and become possessed of healing properties which are exhausted by the first diseased one who steps in. About this pool lay a great multitude of impotent folk waiting for the moving of the water. They are a constantly disappointed crowd, for only one of the multitude can be healed. The next must all wait for the next scramble, and only the least helpless stands any chance whatever, and a wholly impotent person had no chance at all of obtaining health from that pool. The condition of the impotent represents the condition of all by nature, without strength, ungodly, sinners, enemies (Rom. v, 6-10), but what is represented by the pool, by which some one with a slight ailment was healed, is not quite so clear, for there is only one way of salvation, and He is a Saviour for sinners, not for righteous people who think they can do for themselves. Jesus came to these porches by that pool one day and saw there a truly impotent man whose trouble had already lasted him thirty-eight years. Noticing how matters stood, He said to him, "Wilt thou be made whole?" The man's reply, "Sir, I have no man to put me into the pool," shows his helplessness. All he could think of was the pool and a man to put him in. The pool he could see, but the man to put him in he had not yet seen, and when there might be a possibility of his being healed by that pool who could tell? Yet in his helplessness he continued until this day, when a seemingly ordinary man asked him this question and then added, "Rise, take up thy bed and walk" (verse 8), a wholly impossible thing for him to do, and yet he did it, for immediately he was well and strong and took up his bed and walked. A thirty-eight year trouble gone in a moment! Compare the miracle wrought upon the man who was over forty years old by the same Jesus risen and ascended through Peter and John (Acts iii, 2, 8; iv, 22). Splendid healings! Why not more of them? But what about all the rest of the multitude that day? Sometimes He healed all. Note His own remarks about only one widow and only one leper out of the many in the days of Elijah and Elisha (Luke iv, 25-27), and so we are dumb while yet we trust Him fully and rejoice to sing, "As for God, His way is perfect" (Ps. xviii).

The Jews accused the healed man of breaking the Sabbath. He fell back upon the command of the One who healed him, but he knew not and therefore could not tell who He was until he met Him in the temple and heard another message from Him. Then he made it known that Jesus had healed him. After this the Jews did persecute Jesus and sought to kill Him because, as they said, He had broken the Sabbath and also made Himself equal with God by calling God His Father. Instead of rejoicing in the great deliverance granted to the impotent man and giving heed to the words of his deliverer they have only hearts for their own affairs, their law, their Sabbath, their authority, and whoever does not submit to them must be broken to pieces.

Contrast God's treatment of the One in their midst whom they knew not. "The Father loveth the Son, hath committed all judgment unto the Son, sheweth Him all things that Himself doeth" (verses 20, 22). They were professing to honor a God of their own imagination, not the God who brought them out of Egypt into the land of promise, for He was in their midst, but they were so blinded by their pride and self righteousness that they could not see Him.

Contrast His humility and emptiness with their pride: "I can of mine own self do nothing. I seek not mine own will" (verse 30). See how He looks onward to the resurrection of just and unjust at the beginning and end of the coming hour (verses 28, 29), the present age being the hour when those who are dead in sin may hear His voice and live (verses 25, 26). He can wait and be patient with the foolish ones who know Him not, for the kingdom is His and all power in heaven and earth, and in due time it shall be seen by all that God hath made Him Lord and Christ. He is the Fountain of Living Water, and pools are not necessary (Jer. ii, 13; Ps. xxxvi, 9).

Honor to Michael Mallia.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Secretary Metcalf has sent a letter to Michael Mallia, a boatswain on the United States Ship West Virginia, commending him for his gallantry and presence of mind in unhesitatingly jumping overboard to the rescue of a shipmate, J. A. Nelson, Jan. 25 last.

His Courtship

By Helen R. Martin

Author of "Tillie: A Mennonite Maid."

"Enjoyed it more than any novel I have read in five years."

This is a New York newspaper man's verdict of "HIS COURTSHIP." It will be yours when you have read the story which will be published

IN THIS PAPER

It is a most delightful love story. The college professor who taught philosophy and imagined himself immune from the attacks of Cupid learns there are more things in heaven and earth than he had dreamed of in his philosophy when he meets the mysterious maiden on the Morningstar farm. The scene is laid in the country. The story smells of the sweet fields—the freshly plowed ground, the wild rose, the new mown hay.

"It is rarely that one comes across a book so warm, so tender, so personal in its indefinable quality of human sympathy and comprehension."—Buffalo Courier.

"* * * * * Deliciously and variously humorous throughout. In a word, 'His Courtship' is one of the most thoroughly enjoyable novels of the season."—Newark News.

A HORNET'S NEST

Has Probably Been Stirred Up by Talkative Naval Officers.

Washington, Feb. 21.—An effort is being made by Secretary Metcalf to obtain the source of the information alleged to have been furnished to magazine and other writers who have criticized the constructive features of the battleships of the navy. With this object in view, he has caused letters of inquiry to be addressed to various officers requesting categorical answers. For what final purpose this information is sought is not stated. So many hints have been made, however, that the real basis for the criticisms which have appeared has come from naval officers who are opposed to the policy followed by the construction bureau, that it was presumed the inquiry is being made with a view to determining whether they have any foundation in fact. Naval regulations are very strict in forbidding officers from commenting on the policy of the department, and the furnishing of information to persons outside the service and violations of them may lead to severe punishment.

"Rough Sledding" for Autos.

Kendallville, Ind., Feb. 21.—The American car in the New York to Paris automobile race left here at 6:40 last evening on the journey westward, having a good lead of all its competitors. The French car De Dion, having been towed in here by a farmer's team at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, was not able to leave until this morning. The De Dion was housed in a feed barn, where machinists worked on it all the afternoon and late into the night. The journey across northern Indiana, will be a severe one, as the snow is drifted along the roads even with the tops of the fences on either side, and there has been little travel to beat a track.

C. E. Greetings to Sankey.

Sixty-seven years ago Ira D. Sankey, the world famed evangelist in gospel song and co-worker with D. L. Moody, was born. Bedridden and stricken with blindness, but with firm faith and a buoyant, confident spirit, he celebrated his sixty-seventh birthday in his Brooklyn home, receiving the greetings and congratulations of his worldwide army of friends. Among the messages sent him is this one from an army of admiring Christian Endeavorers:

Prevention of Disease Much More Important Than Cure.

"An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure" is especially true in stomach troubles.

A few doses of Mi-o-na stomach tablets taken at the first warning of coated tongue, flatulence, heartburn, head aches, distress after eating and other symptoms of indigestion, will prevent a chronic case of stomach suffering that may last for years.

These little tablets give strength and tone to the muscular wall of the stomach and intestines, and promote the secretion of gastric juices so that whatever food is taken is naturally digested without pain or distress.

Johnson's drug store has seen so many cures made by Mi-o-na that they sell the remedy in 50 cent boxes under a guarantee to refund the money in case it does not cure.

Yet the editor of the Knightstown Banner devotes three or four columns this week attacking Watson, one who befriended him in such a manner that a genuine real MAN would never forget. For shame! Shall the truth be known? On good feature about it, little of the world will hear the wail.

THE SENSIBLE COUGH CURE

There are kinds of cough remedies which are as bad as the coughs they are intended to cure. They stop the coughs sometimes, but they do it by doing just what a cough cure should not do and that is to dry up the secretions and to strangle the cough by means of opiates. A real cough cure should stimulate the secretions, heal the inflamed surface and cure by removing the cause.

Dr. BEHER'S EXPECTORANT cures in the right way. It has been curing coughs for years and we know of no way in which it could be improved. Our confidence in it is such that we sell each bottle under a positive guarantee. Price 25 and 50c.
